Fengshan Community Garden Trail

Over the years, the Community in Bloom (CIB) programme has worked with Town Councils, Residents' Committees (RC) and Neighbourhood Committees (NC) to set up community gardens where residents can enjoy gardening, as well as bond with their neighbours.

Today, Fengshan Constituency is home to more than eight community gardens where ornamental and fruit-bearing plants are common features. These community gardens also incorporate environmentally-friendly initiatives where upcycling of materials is often used, to enhance the gardens.

The Fengshan Community Garden Trail serves as a guide for visitors to discover beautiful gardens managed by residents in their friendly neighbourhood.

About Community In Bloom Programme
Community In Bloom (CIB) is a programme launched by National Parks Board (NParks) in 2005. It aims to nurture a gardening culture among Singaporeans by encouraging and facilitating community gardening efforts. It is also an opportunity to build community bonds and strengthen social resilience.

Fruit-bearing Plants

Chiku (Manilkara zapota)

Custard Apple
(Annona squamosa)

Star Fruit (Averrhoa carambola)

Purple Passion Fruit
(Passiflora edulis f. flavicarpa)

Kedondong
(Spondias cytherea)

Mulberry (Morus alba)

Jackfruit (Artocarpus heterophyllus)

Ornamental Plants

Butterfly Pea (Clitoria ternatea)
A blue, edible dye can be extracted from its flowers and is used to make traditional Malay and Nonya kuehs.

Roselle (Hibiscus sabdariffa)
Fresh or dried flowers can be immersed in hot water and then sweetened with sugar to prepare a beverage rich in antioxidants such as Vitamin C and anthocyanin.

Singapore Rhododendron
(Melastoma malabathricum)
Its seeds are used to produce a black dye while the roots produce a pink dye.

Four-o'clock
(Mirabilis jalapa)
Its flowers can be used to make various dyes, depending on the colour of the petals.

- Garden Visit Etiquette:
- Ask the gardeners for assistance if you would like some plant cuttings such as Butterfly Pea and Roselle, which are grown on the perimeter of the community garden.
 - Help keep the plants healthy for all to enjoy by not damaging them.
 - Gardeners have put in many hours of hard work to grow the crops. Return their kindness by offering them seed packs or volunteering to help out with gardening activities.

Best Visiting Time:
Early morning (before 9 am) or evening (after 5 pm) when the community gardeners are usually present. Special arrangements for garden visits can be made with the respective Residents' Committee-in-charge.
